

Learning Disability

Whether your child exhibits delays in reading, math, spelling or writing, dyslexia, retention or comprehension of material, or is simply a slow learner, read on. If you take your child to a homeopath, not only will these specific areas of concern be addressed, but your child will be assessed and appreciated as a whole person. He may suffer from as or headaches or allergies in addition to experiencing learning challenges. The beauty of homeopathy is that all of these concerns will be addressed at the same time by a single homeopathic medicine. Within weeks or a couple of months of finding the right homeopathic medicine, you will notice concrete changes in your child such as the following:

- Grades should improve significantly.
  - You child will report more ease and less frustration with learning. She will no longer feel that school and homework are a struggle.
  - The teacher(s) will notice a distinct change in your child's learning skills.
  - Behavior, often exacerbated by a child's frustration with learning, will improve markedly.
  - Handwriting typically becomes more legible;
  - Maturity can increase much more rapidly than before.
- Children often spontaneously begin to enjoy reading and other subjects that were previously drudgery.
  - Friendships often blossom as a child develops more confidence and self-assuredness.

In my clinical experience, these are changes that begin to occur within one to four weeks after the correct homeopathic medicine is given. The improvement continues and builds over time. One of my greatest joys is to hear that a child who was previously in a special classroom or school has, as a result of homeopathy, become mainstreamed. Or to hear a child tell me in her own words how much easier school is and, as a result, how much happier she feels. Even for children with more severe delays such as Asperger's Syndrome, autism, or developmental delays, improvement is often possible.

The Most Common Homeopathic Medicines for Learning Disabilities

Your child might need any homeopathic medicine under the sun or, for that matter, under the ground. Perhaps a medicine made from a mineral salt or a flower or the milk of a mammal. The specific symptom pattern will indicate which of the many possible medicines best matches your child.

The three medicines I mention here are the absolutely most common- those that I prescribe extremely often. Be aware that learning disabilities is a chronic rather than an acute problem. It is part of your child's ongoing symptom picture and not a condition that you should treat yourself. Put your child's homeopathic care in the hands of an experienced practitioner who can take an objective view and offer your child the best possible chance of success.
